C. D. THOMPSON, BUTLER & CO., NO. 1, HIGHLAND STREET, TITUSVILLE, PA.

The Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution relates the following: "Not long since a gentleman in a neighboring county, noted for his pleasant manners and waggish disposition, had a christening scene at his house. Baby, about eight months old, was to be christened, and the friends were gathered to witness the spectacle. The minister, turning to the father, asked: "Whither the child's name?" It had not been named. The husband turned an impertinent, mischievous glance on his wife, who smiled in return. With flashing eyes he said to the preacher, "None is after Lagston—has my nearest neighbor?" One can fancy the uproar of laughter which greeted the announcement."

In Portsmouth, N. H., is a young fishman who seems to be a favorite of fortune. He lost his wife a year or two ago by a railroad accident. His second wife, with her child, died in childbirth a few days since, after a terrible surgical operation. Within a few hours a good horse belonging to him fell and was very seriously injured, and somebody stole from $50 to $80 belonging to him and his late wife from a drawer in his house.

Miss Grant is a strict vegetarian, and for sixteen years has used no meats, butter, tea nor coffee, nor any sugar, salt, pepper, glucose, mustard, horseradish, pies, cakes nor stimulants. Her diet consists of Graham bread, oatmeal puddings, beans, peas, popcorn, apples, and other fruits in their season. For many years he has not taken a particle of medicine, and proposes never to do so, but when he must die, to die a natural death.

The damage to the fruit crop in the vicinity of Boston by the late storm was very great. Many orchards filled with pear and apple trees were seriously injured, and several farmers lost their entire crop of pears, nearly ready for market. Every tree in one large orchard, near Salem, was uprooted or broken off.

Mrs. Paragon isn't dead yet. An unwieldy chap, blessed with a shock of red hair and a love for the display of big words, stepped into one of our shoe-stores yesterday, and noticing that there had been some innovation, said: "Is it in the wrong place, or has you been re-arranged?"

According to the Jewish calendar we have just entered upon the new thousand six hundred and thirtieth year.

The Lyndale Hotel Fire—The Treasurer of the Lyndale Hotel has just received $117,000.
